

"Trials of Life" depicts a young hunter as he matures into a shaman, enduring the hardships of the northern environment and learning from them. The waterfall represents the source of all life from which the shaman draws his magic and knowledge, Eagle brings him truth and wisdom, and Bear brings power and agility.

Rodney Kolausok, Inuit Stone Carver

Born 1970 in Inuvik, N.W.T., Rodney has been carving since 1988. Initially drawing upon traditional subjects and imagery, he has matured into a carver of considerable imagination, weaving Inuit images into stone stories of his own design. Rodney has earned a reputation as one of the Lower Mainland's most prolific artists and includes among his clientele many of British Columbia's professional elite.

Rodney can be contacted at 588-5525.
